

REPLACEMENT ABSTRACT

~~A display device comprises a display unit which displays an image and can be remotely controlled by a remote controller, and a control unit which magnifies a predetermined information included in the image displayed by the display unit, Systems and methods for providing an image display device that is remotely controlled to magnify predetermined information included in an image according to attributes indicating the predetermined information, as well as the distance between a remote controller and a control unit.~~

